

Alvin and Isabelle Liberman Memorial Workshop

May 31st 2013

Bousfield Rm 160, Liberman Room
Department of Psychology
University of Connecticut, Storrs

1:00-1:45 p.m. Visit Al's and Isabelle's resting places to lay stones.*

Speech, Reading, and Brain

- 3:00-3:20 Language by ear and by eye: The Libermans' perspective
Michael Turvey, University of Connecticut and Haskins Laboratories
- 3:20-3:50 Infants will tune to (pretty much) anything: implications for pediatric cochlear implant users
Heather Bortfeld, University of Connecticut and Haskins Laboratories
- 3:50-4:20 Learning language by ear and by eye
David Braze, Haskins Laboratories
- 4:20-4:50 Sensitivity to speech-articulatory variables in printed word recognition
Stephen Frost, Haskins Laboratories
- 4:50-5:20 Emergence of categorical perception: Evidence from brain and behavior
Emily Myers, University of Connecticut and Haskins Laboratories
- 5:20 General Discussion

The speakers and invited guests will gather for dinner at the Carello and Turvey home at 6:30 pm. All are welcome to join us at Sweet William's Pub beginning at 8:30 pm.

*The Jewish Cemetery is on Rte. 32, opposite the Mansfield Drive-In (just south of the intersection of Rtes. 31 and 32). Turn into the cemetery (there is no sign) and take the immediate right onto the dirt road. Park alongside the road, walk down to the end and go through the gate on the left. Carello and Turvey will be there to guide you.